

Dun-Bri Group acquires Emergency Vehicle Solutions, to expand into the 999 service sector

Dun-Bri Group are delighted to announce the acquisition of Emergency Vehicle Solutions (EVS), a distributor of vehicle warning lighting products to the emergency services, to hasten its expansion into the sector.

The combination of the two companies will increase the value Dun-Bri Group currently offers to its customers, and the first time since the company's inception, will enable it to supply a full portfolio of blue and green lighting for emergency service use across Europe.

"Dun-Bri's customers are looking to us for solutions to deliver a wider, better range of products and more effectively manage their fleets with this range", said Andrew Strath, the Group's Managing Director.

"The brand and base of EVS is the perfect complement to our current range, and now our customers can enjoy access to blue and green, as well as amber lighting, backed up with our specialist staff providing product advice and unbeatable aftersales support", he added. "We are delighted to have acquired the intellectual property and look forward to welcoming new and EVS' longstanding customers in the near future."

EVS began trading in 2003 in Worthing, East Sussex, and grew to become one of the most popular brands connected to the supply of emergency vehicle lighting products, siren systems and conspicuity products from manufacturers including ECCO Safety Group, LAP Electrical and Redtronic, before its acquisition by the Group in February 2016.

"Our mission has always been to enable our customers to access an ever expanding range of products whilst optimising their buying power, receiving value for money with impeccable customer service across the UK and Europe", added Andrew. "By combining the best of both organisations, we will accelerate our ability to deliver that vision and bring new innovation to the marketplace."

The company is currently working on the delivery of this new brand and in particular a new web site and product catalogue, utilising the company's impressive stock profile and product offering, with the latest technology to allow customers to browse and buy using their smartphones, tablets and online, whilst benefitting from a wealth of technical expertise and UK-wide fitting service.
